COORDINATORS: Christina Cox, Heather Mason, Michael Orenge, Alexandru Trofin

ATELIER: [Re_Map]1090

COLLABORATOR: Professor Tom Jefferies

KEY SKILLS: Modeling, Digital Representation & Communication

AGENDA: Developments in contemporary thought have always taken place in space. Certain spaces and locations have become iconic, connecting developments in thought and culture with place and space.

At the core of the project is Ludwig Wittgenstein's hut in Skjolden which played a significant role in his development of philosophical thought.

Sold for building material in the 1950's all that is left of the hut is a foundation structure, the building this once supported was dismantled and redistributed into a nearby house. Plans are in motion to deconstruct the house and reconstruct a version of the original hut.

The project objective is to question how we reconstruct this significant lost space of contemporary thought.
