Trip to Lake District - Exploring Ruralism

Agenda & Production

Our journey starts on an excursion to the lake district, with a site of historical importance to the art world. By studying the dada movement, engaging with works of important figures like Kurt Schwitters, designing and filming life in the rural, we will exhibit the importance of the countryside and bring attention to its beauty and relevance in today's urbanised world.

Our event will consist of a series of workshops including a sculptural and a design workshop, dada talks as well as film making sessions. This will be exhibited towards the end of the event.
